Built for the Tough Stuff: Confined Space, Hydro Excavation, and 24/7 Industrial Response

INSIGHTS • CENTER LINE LOCATING • MAY 28, 2026

Confined space. Hydro excavation. Industrial cleaning. 24/7 response. The jobs nobody else wants — and the ones that need to be done right the first time.

Some jobs aren't routine. They happen at night, in confined spaces, with equipment that has to handle whatever is actually down there. Those are the jobs Center Line Locating is built for.

Built for the Tough Stuff

When a confined space, hydro excavation, or industrial cleaning job comes in, the crew that shows up has to be ready before the work starts:

- Safety first. OSHA trained, safety driven. Confined space work isn't a place to cut corners.
- Specialized equipment. Industry-leading equipment built for the most demanding jobs.
- 24/7 response. We show up. Day or night.
- Expert team. Skilled professionals. Proven results.

Confined Space Work, Done Right

Confined space work has rules — and the rules exist because people get hurt when they're ignored. Our crews are OSHA trained, equipped with the gear the standard actually requires, and led by people who have done this work before.

Hydro Excavation in Tight, Sensitive Spots

Hydro excavation lets us expose utilities and dig in places open trenching can't go safely — next to existing infrastructure, around live utilities, and in tight industrial environments where the surface and the surroundings have to stay intact.

Industrial Cleaning Across the Carolinas

From sumps and pits to industrial vessels and process lines, our crews handle the cleaning work that keeps facilities running. We bring the equipment, we follow the plan, and we leave the site cleaner than we found it.

24/7 Response — We Show Up

Industrial work doesn't always happen between 8 and 5. When you need a crew at 2 a.m. on a Sunday, we send a crew at 2 a.m. on a Sunday.

Industrial Strength. Real People. Real Results.
